THE SCISSORS GRINDER.

From the Chicago Daily News.

"Is he really so handsome?" said Eleanor May incredulously.

"The handsomest man you ever saw in your life!" cried Olive Satterly.

She was sitting on the back door-step, shelling peas, with a great cinnamon rose bush showering its pink petals down on her brown braids of hair, and her hazel eyes sparkled beneath their long lashes, while Maude, the beauty of the family, leaned out of the window, her pretty tresses screwed up in crimping papers, and a gingham wrapper buttoned carelessly at the throat, with no ornamental accessories in the way of collars, frills, or ribbon bows; for Maude had been to a party the night before, and had slept late, and absolutely declined any interference with the household affairs that morning.

"Exactly like a corsair," said Maude, suppressing a yawn. "Tall and dark, with such a great diamond on his little finger, and eyes like cherry wine. And he was so surprised to think that I recognized him through his disguise."

"What costume did he assume?" asked Eleanor May, who, not having received an invitation to the fancy dress ball at Mrs. Pipington's, was naturally exceedingly inquisitive on the subject.

"A private," said Maude, "with a black velvet cap, you know, and scarlet sash and a cutlass. And he declared that he would disguise himself so completely the next time that I couldn't possibly identify him and he wanted a box of kid gloves on the question."

"I suppose he means at Lizzie Hooker's birthday party?" said Olive.

"Of course," nodded Maude.

"I wish I could go," said Olive, working diligently away at the peas, that dropped like emerald rain into the shining tin pan.

"Well, you can't," replied Maude, shortly. "Mamma says she can't afford two fancy dresses, and I'm the oldest."

"Yes, I know," said Olive, meekly.

"And Mr. Medicote danced only once with you last night," added Maude, unable to repress her exultation, "and he waltzed with me three times, besides the German."

Little Olive, looking shyly up at her sister, secretly wished that Providence had seen fit to make her also a beauty.

"I suppose," said Miss May, curiously, "that he is very rich?"

"O, very," nodded Maude.

And Olive's thoughts jumped at once to the idea of how beautiful her sister would look in the regulation orange blossoms and white tulle.

"I wonder if I ever shall be married?" pondered Olive, shelling peas faster than ever.

"Who's that coming around the corner of the house?" cried Maude, with some asperity, "one of those everlasting peddlers again? Oh, it's only a scissors grinder."

"And very fortunate, too," said Mrs. Satterly, a pale, over-worked woman, with light hair and faded complexion; "for my shears are so bad I can't cut with 'em. And there's the embroidery scissors, and a pair that belongs to the mending basket, and—"

"How much do you ask a pair?" demanded Maude, sailing out upon the garden path, with her pretty feet thrust into slippers, and her hair yet in the loose, tangled curls which had hung like coiled gold down her neck the night before.

The man—a smart-browed, stooping foreigner—set his wheel upon the grass, bowed low, with a smile which disclosed teeth gleaming whitely through his thick, bushy beard, and held up six fingers in pantomimic gesture.

"That's to much," said Maude.

"He can't understand you," said Eleanor laughing.

Miss Satterly shook her head, stamped the little untidy foot, held up six pairs of scissors in various stages of dilapidation, and displayed a silver quarter of a dollar.

The scissors grinder smiled again, and made an obeisance nearly to the ground, and assented to the bargain with numerous nods and signs.

"Isn't he funny?" said Eleanor.

"Horrid velvet-coated fellow!" said Maude. "To think he belongs to the same humanity with my divine Agernon!"

"He looks tired and thirsty," said gentle-hearted Olive. "I've a great mind to offer him a cool drink."

"You'll do no such thing," said Maude imperiously. "I'll have no sister of mine running to wait on scissors grinders! Mamma is that choo-choo ready yet?"

"Choo-choo!" repeated poor Mrs. Satterly, with a conscience-stricken air. "I declare, Maude, I forgot all about it. But I'll run directly and see it boiling."

Maude Satterly crimsoned to the very temples.

"You're always forgetting! I never saw any one like you in my life! No, I won't have it now. If you can't prepare me a cool drink when I want it, you can't prepare it at all. I should think you might have thought of it, Olive."

"I am very sorry, Maude," began Olive, apologetically; "for all that, I think you ought not to speak so cruelly to mamma."

"Hold your tongue!" said Maude, snapping her toes again. "Do you suppose I am going to be tutored by you? I shall speak as I please, and so I give you fair warning. Dear me, how that scissors grinder's buzzing makes my head ache!"

And she swept into the house like a fair fury.

When Olive came in, a few minutes afterward, with the six pairs of scissors all sharpened and burnished up to a scientific state of brilliancy, her sister was lying on the sofa, with her face turned to the wall and her eyes resolutely closed.

"Oh, dear me," thought Olive, "I'm afraid she's in one of her regular sulking fits that last twenty-four hours at a time."

And she took advantage of circumstances to pour out a goblet of ice-water, and offered it surreptitiously to the swarthy Italian, when she carried out the silver quarter that he had so hardly earned.

He bowed low once more, after the Oriental fashion, drank it eagerly, and astonished Olive very much by raising her hand to his lips, as he uttered the words "Buon giorno signorina!" and departed.

"I suppose it's his foreign way," said Olive, turning very rosy.

"It's lucky for you that Maude didn't see him," laughed Eleanor May.

"Oh, Eleanor, don't tell her!" said Olive, blushing deeper than ever.

"Of course I shan't," said Eleanor.

"Well, what luck?" demanded Guy Mariner, as he sat smoking at his window that evening, and hailed with acclamation the approach of Algernon Medicote.

"I've won my wager."

"Not!"

"But, by the shades of Mohammed, I have," asserted Medicote, sitting where the cool breeze of twilight could fan his brow.

"How did you manage?"

"I disguised myself as a scissors grinder, and put the family shears in perfect order."

"Did they suspect—the young ladies, I mean?"

"Not in the least."

"And how does the fair one with the 'golden locks' appear in the seclusion of her own home?"

"Like a slovenly virago," said he.

"Had it been anything else than the testimony of my own eyes I couldn't have believed it. But Olive—little brown-eyed Olive—she is a jewel of the first water!"

"So you have transferred your allegiance from one sister to another?" laughed Mariner. "But isn't it rather hard for the divine Maude to lose both her wager and her lover at the same time?"

"It's a rosebud mouth," said Medicote, gravely shaking his head, "but the sharp words spoiled its perfect Cupid's bow; the hair was like spun gold, but crimping papers are not becoming to the female face. And, upon the whole, Mariner, I think I have reason to be grateful for ever and ever to the scissors grinding fraternity."

And beautiful Maude Satterly could not understand why it was that Algernon Medicote proposed to little brown-eyed Olive instead of her.

"Everybody thought he was devoted to me," said she disconsolately.

"Perhaps he changed his mind," said Eleanor.

Of course Mr. Medicote confessed the episode of scissors grinding to his blushing and happy little wife after their marriage—well regulated husbands never do keep anything from their wives—but Maude never suspected. For what says the old adage? "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

Dr. Mintie's Nephreticum.

DR. MINTIE'S NEPHRETICUM works wonders. In all cases of Dropsy, Bright's Disease, Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Complaints, or Retention of Urine, these troubles are entirely cured by the Nephreticum. Female Weakness, Gravel, Diabetes, pain in the back and joints are cured when all other medicines have failed.

See what the Druggists of Portland and San Francisco say about Dr. Mintie's Nephreticum and English Dandelion Pills:

"We have sold a large amount of Dr. Mintie's medicines; the English Dandelion Pills; also the Nephreticum, and in all cases they are highly spoken of and give entire satisfaction."

THE THREATENED OUTRAGE.

Clarke, the engineer of the V. & T. lightning train, has proved himself a brave man. He showed moral courage when he refused to join the Mechanics' Union. When he stood at his post yesterday, and faced the threatened peril, he displayed a high degree of manly intrepidity. As a brave man, who can neither be cajoled nor driven, Clarke deserves respect.

There is a principle of personal liberty involved in the affair. Freedom rests upon the social law that every man has equal rights. The right to sell his labor where he pleases is one of them. No man can be called free who submits to the tyranny of a Union. If one wishes to join a Union he has the right to do so. It would be an interference with his freedom to deny him that privilege. If the members of a Union choose to combine and fix a certain rate for a day's work, to which they all agree, no one may say them nay. But to attempt by threats, to force an outsider into the Union is dastardly. To punish by personal violence his manly and courageous refusal, would be an outrage, a cowardly act of tyranny, a base, mean, un-American act, that would disgrace any community claiming to be free.

Coercion is just as odious when it comes from employers as when from the employed. No man or association, or corporation, has any right to compel the acceptance of their rates of wages. Any form of bulldozing, whether it comes from workmen or capitalists, is despicable. To prevent a poor man, with a large family, from working, as Unions have often done, is a cruel and odious thing, an injustice that every true American should condemn.

A LONG VOYAGE WITH THE PLAGUE.

The ship Templar arrived at San Francisco yesterday after a voyage of three hundred and twenty days from New York. On October 14th a terrific hurricane broke the rudder, and set the ship leaking. The vessel reached Rio Janeiro on Dec. 8th. The Templar sailed from Rio on Feb. 20th, with yellow fever on board. Nine of the crew died of it while in port. At sea the disease broke out afresh. The captain's wife died and the captain himself barely struggled through a long sickness. During a gale in the Pacific the mate fell overboard and was drowned. In all there were thirteen deaths from yellow fever during the voyage. Although the last death on board the ship occurred over four months ago, the Templar will be held in rigid quarantine at San Francisco. The story of the voyage of three hundred and twenty days, with all its calamities and miseries, is one of the most pitiful ever told.

The S. F. Post tells a story of festivities in honor of the wrong man. It appears that there are two men named Wm. E. Chandler. One, the Secretary of the National Republican Committee, the other a professional acrobat. The politician has been resting in the vicinity of Eureka, while the gymnast went to San Francisco to perform at Woodward's Gardens. Seeing his name on the list of hotel arrivals, the State Republican Committee tendered the supposed politician a dinner at the Palace. The acrobat felt himself highly flattered by the honor, and ate and drank with the pleased Californians in the most affable manner. But when the "Great Senegambian Juggler" rose to respond to a toast he "let the cat out of the bag." The California Republican Central Committee retreated in disorder, and left that banqueting hall deserted by all save the hero of the awdard arena. Such is the substance of the story related by our truthful contemporary of the city of hills.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Good tea is the drink at Tuscarora now.

A rifle club is being organized in Tuscarora.

Large hailstones fell in Eureka on Wednesday.

The Carson guard will shoot at the Caledonian picnic next Saturday.

A Carson lady appeared on the street yesterday carrying a fur muff.

Winnemucca is trying to get up a fair for the Fall. It looks discouraging.

Prospecting parties are leaving Carson daily for the southern mining camps.

Eureka is as bad as Carson in the matter of spikes projecting from the sidewalks.

There is a live double-headed woman on exhibition in Virginia, so the advertisement says.

A party of fishermen caught over 800 trout in Jack Creek, near Tuscarora on Monday and Tuesday.

John T. Pantlind has relinquished charge of the Ormsby House at Carson and gone on a prospecting tour.

Croquet at Eureka is chiefly played by ladies. Eureka youths fight shy of outdoor exercise during the warm weather.

A Tuscarora lady objected to a pair of stockings shown her by a dry goods clerk because the "uprights" weren't long enough.

"Our streets are kept in better condition than any in the State," says the Carson Appeal. How about those projecting nails in your plank sidewalks?

Three Carson boys have started out in a two-wheeled cart on a camping expedition. It is their first experience and will be gone three weeks. Will visit the big trees and knock around. Good boys.

Two spoons. The Carson Tribune asks: "What can be jollier than dancing in the moonlight?" Don't know, sure, unless it is hugging your girl in the dark on the front doorstep, answers the Virginia Stage.

Whenever the Eurekaus see a cloud in the sky at this season, they pull on their wading boots and man the boats, in expectation of a cloud-burst. Perhaps floods are a drawback for Eureka—as a summer resort.

The sports of Eureka recently imported a thoroughbred greyhound from California to course for hares over the hills and dales in the vicinity of that lively town. But to their great chagrin, the sagebrush rabbit outruns the hound every time.

J. R. Evans, of Virginia recently kidnapped his own child from his divorced wife and took it to Eureka. There he was arrested, taken to Virginia, and the child restored to its mother, the lawful guardian. Evans has been bound over to appear before the Grand Jury.

A lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen has been formed in Virginia City. It is an insurance and benevolent secret society, and has upon the coast a membership of 8000, and in the country about 60,000. Upon the death of any member his heirs come in for $2000. Sick benefits are discretionary with the lodge.

The Sabbath is probably more generally observed in Eureka than in any other town in the state. Next Sunday the devotional services will consist of the usual base-ball exercises in the morning, followed by the sacrament of pigeon shooting. In the afternoon, preceding Sunday school, there will be a foot-race for a pool of $500. The customary fights will take place in the evening, at the usual hours.

This is the way that the Appeal puffs the moonlight and Varney's ball: "The indications are that the night will be of the sort we read of in fairy tales. An excellent band has been engaged, and these who do not wish to dance can be inspired to charming and innocent flirtations by exquisite musical strains. Let all attend, for it is not often that such opportunities for passing a delightful moonlight night are presented."

Hog and hominy was never so cheap in Sonoma county as it is now. Hogs are down to three cents a pound and corn about the same proportion as to price. There is no danger of anybody starving there.

On Saturday last at Healdsburg, a valuable mare belonging to S. Soules, dropped dead while attached to a delivery wagon. An autopsy revealed that a sac containing perhaps two quarts of water had formed in the region of the heart, and bursting, death was instant.

THE FALL RACES.

Plumas and Lassen Horse Men Think They are Discriminated Against.

Considerable dissatisfaction is felt by parties in Lassen and Plumas counties with the programme for the races at the coming state fair. A correspondent writes to the Weekly GAZETTE that it looks as if the whole of the bill was gotten up to suit Matt Canavan. He says that in place of the five miles out, and three miles and repeat, there ought to have been a race for the 2:30 and the 2:40 classes. Ashley is a good horse for the 2:30 race, but he cannot go in the 35 class, and would not be entered in the 26 race; so his owner has about concluded not to come. Carson Billie would help to fill the 2:30 race; Carlisle and Wm. Tell were coming for the 2:40 race, but Mr. Thompson very unexpectedly finds that there is no 2:40 race. Mr. Kingsbury has some colts training, and there are a number of horses at work but their owners see so little encouragement that they are thinking of dropping the whole business, as it will not pay to bring the colts if they have no chance for the 2:30 and 2:40 horses. They feel as if $3000 put up for running races which only brings over a lot of gamblers, was extremely liberal compared with the trotting purses which brings in the whole population from surrounding counties. The Plumas horses are going to California and ought to be brought here by all means. The writer says the only information sent into the country was in the GAZETTE. The letter was read to the Trustees at their meeting to-day and they say that with the 2:50 and 2:35 purses the programme is the best it could be made. There was not room for everything, so they chose what seemed the best. It is said that Ashley made 2:27 1/2 in Carson, so he could not go for a 2:30 purse. Some one writes that there ought to be a pacing race, etc., etc. The Trustees think the programme suits a greater number than any other they could make. Anyhow, it is too late to change.

The Drop That Cheers.

T. F. Laycock, was to-day putting the finishing touches on the drop curtain for the new theatre. The painting has been done in his best manner and is creditable to his reputation as a scenic artist. The curtain is 21 feet square, and even in its present bad light, makes a very handsome appearance. The scene is on the Rhine. There is the shining water flowing between green banks; there the towering cliffs, surmounted with gray old castles; and there, too, in the foreground, the usual tourist "giving taffy" to a fair-haired peasant girl with a pail. The painting of the scenery will occupy Mr. Laycock for at least a month to come. The work on the new theatre is being pushed forward rapidly. It will make, when completed, one of the prettiest auditoriums in the State.

The McGinley Troupe.

The McGinley Sisters leave Reno on Monday for an extended tour through northeastern California. They show at Loyalton next Tuesday, at Beckwith on Wednesday, at Jamison on Thursday, at Eureka Mills on Friday, at Quincy on Saturday, and at Gibsons on Sunday and Monday. They will come home through Downieville. The troupe will be under the business management of Bobby McGinley. He is a good boy, and a show in himself. His imitation of noises and animal voices are very amusing. Miss Sallie McGinley is an actress with both natural talent, and careful education. Alice is a most valuable addition to the company. Morris Gregory, Chas. Greeley and Gabe Hoskins are sure to make lots of fun for the Californians. Little six-year old Gusie is said to be a prodigy. Such an excellent company ought to make a successful campaign.

I. O. O. F.

The officers and members of Reno Lodge No. 19 I. O. O. F., are hereby notified to meet at their hall at 1 o'clock P. M. sharp, on Sunday the 3d inst., for the purpose of attending, as a lodge, the funeral of Brother F. G. John S. Bowker. The lodge will move from their hall at half past 1 o'clock, and proceed to the hall of Truckee Lodge in regalia. Transient Brothers in good standing are fraternally invited to join in the procession. Brothers will bear in mind that the hours set for meeting and moving from the hall, will be promptly observed. By order
J. M. FLANAGAN, N. G.

The End of the Division.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Central Pacific Railroad the question of changing the end of the Sacramento division from Truckee to Reno was discussed and indefinitely postponed. The operating department showed that the trains could not be run here with safety, and there will be no change made for some time to come, if ever. The passenger crews will run here, however, as soon as the new route via Martinez is completed.

BOCA'S HOTEL FOR TRAMPS.

A Resting Place for the Tired Wanderer—A Lodging Without Money—The Mecca of Modern Pilgrims

The town of Boca is distinguished by the possession of a free lodging house for tramps. Perhaps no other place in the United States has such an institution. The edifice was put up by some of the business men of Boca, who apprehended danger from the tramps about the place. They have always, since tramping began, found that station a convenient halting place on the line of march. So many of them slept in the lumber yards and about the buildings there that fire was feared as the probable result of their carelessness with matches. So a large board shanty was built on the outskirts of the town—set apart, as it were, for the free and exclusive use of the tramp fraternity. The tramps' hotel at Boca is now known far and wide among the tramp brotherhood. No genuine tramp who visits the Pacific Coast without spending a night at the famous inn. From ten to twenty of the wanderers may be found within its hospitable walls on any summer night. There the worn and weary knight of the brake-beam recruits his exhausted energies for the long trip across the plains or the cold ride over the Summit. And there he finds congenial society and good fellowship.

CLARK AND THE UNION.

The Disturbance by the Union Yesterday—Clark runs his Train Unmolested.

In spite of the repeated warnings of the Mechanics' Union, engineer Clark run the lightning into Virginia yesterday on time. When the train arrived at Carson a crowd was on the platform to see what would happen. Nothing happened. The sheriff of Ormsby county with a posse of twenty-five men got on the train and went to Virginia as a guard. A crowd of about 1500 men and boys awaited the arrival of the train at the Virginia station. No disturbance of any kind occurred and Clark walked the streets of Virginia all day unmolested. Clark came down with the train last evening but met with no interruption in the discharge of his duty. A large crowd gathered at the Virginia station again, and at Carson but the run was made without any trouble.

JOTTINGS.

—Next Monday will be steamer day.
—Ranning's celebrated polish will put a shine on a grizzly bear or a door-mat.
—Hammersmith & Belz's barber shop will be closed at one o'clock to-morrow on account of the funeral.
—The Trustees of the Agricultural Society met this afternoon and adjourned until 9 o'clock to-night.
—A Central Pacific conductor says there are more men walking along the track than riding on the cars.
—The Methodist Episcopal Sunday school will meet to-morrow at 1 o'clock, earlier than usual, in consequence of the funeral of Judge Bowker.

—There will be a number of applicants for the position of justice of the peace before the board of commissioners on Monday. Wm. H. Young is probably the inside man.
—The water meeting at the court house this afternoon appointed J. P. Foulks and A. J. Hatch a committee to bring the matter before the county commissioners in shape for them to act.

PERSONAL.

J. F. Fletcher came up on No. 3. Bishop Whitaker is spending the day in Reno.
Bob Pixley, the mining expert, was on the train this morning.
James Ware, superintendent of the Truckee Lumber Company's factory, is in town.
J. P. Foulks, of Verdi, is in town for the purpose of seeing his old friend Judge Bowker buried.

Caught a Thirty Pound Trout.

Judge Webster and family, accompanied by Dr. Sheets, returned last night from a trip to Pyramid Lake. They had fine fishing and shooting while there. Lew Walker, a recognized local authority in sporting matters, informed the GAZETTE that the party caught about one hundred pounds of trout per day. The wild goat shooting on the islands in the lake must be excellent, as Mr. Walker reports that the party bagged thirteen kids during their stay. They were there four days. The capture of a thirty pound trout was a pleasing incident of the trip. It is said that the fish was cooked upon the lake shore, well stuffed with sage and onions—a royal feast.

The Funeral.

The funeral of Judge Bowker will take place to-morrow afternoon. The body is now at the Odd Fellows Hall. There it will lie in state to-morrow from 12 o'clock until two. At that hour the procession will form at the hall and march to the M. E. church. The funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. C. McKelvey. The burial will take place at the Odd Fellows' Cemetery. The coffin will not be opened at the church.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Whitelaw Reid, editor of the N. Y. Tribune, expects to leave California for home on Monday, visiting Tahoe, and perhaps Virginia City on the way.
